DILLINGHAM, Eng., July 12.—(AP)—While laughing thousands watched and cheered a fire-fighting exhibition, eleven boy naval cadets and firemen were burned to death here last night. Six others, seriously injured, were carried to St. Bartholomew's hospital to aid which the festival was held.

A specially erected model house was the scene of a gala fire-brigade rescue turned into a death tragedy for the 12 to 14 year-old youths taking part.

The youngsters, dressed in clown suits, made frantic efforts to get out. Great applause from the spectators greeted their efforts, and the crowd not knowing they were witnessing a tragedy.

Fireman Jack Tarbett, who had been the blushing bride in a scene a few minutes before, was standing on top of the flimsy structure when flames burst out at the bottom. The crowd laughed and cheered, thinking it was part of the play. But Tarbett knew there was something wrong for the flames should have broken out at the top and the building been cleared of human freight before it was demolished.

Held for Grand Jury After Admitting Theft To Bank Officials.

LITTLE ROCK, July 12.—(AP)—L. J. Dehmer, 25-year-old teller of the American Southern Trust Co., was held to the grand jury today after pleading guilty to a charge of embezzlement of $1400 of the company's funds.

Dehmer was arrested last night following a confession to officials of the shortage in his accounts. J. Curran Conway, vice president of the bank said Dehmer had already repaid $800 of the shortage and expected to repay the rest of it within a short time. The loss, however, if any, will be covered by the bank.

Dehmer has been in the company's employ for more than nine years.

Burned To Death In Flames Following
Auto Crash.

MEMPHIS, July 12.—(AP)—What was to have been a happy reunion ended in tragedy when the automobile in which Mr. and Mrs. R. L. McNatt were returning to their home in Jackson, Tenn., from a stay in Memphis, crashed into another car disabled and standing by the side of the road, resulting in a fire in which both were fatally burned. Both died in a Memphis hospital.

For the past four months Mrs. McNatt had lived in Memphis and Mr. McNatt, a telephone company employee, in Jackson. Wednesday McNatt came to Memphis and it was decided his wife would return with him.

T. J. Naramore, owner of the disabled car, reported to the sheriff's office after the accident. He explained that his car had stopped on him and that he had pushed it to the side of the road and was endeavoring to locate a mechanic when the accident occurred.

LITTLE ROCK, July 12.—(AP)—David A. Gates, commissioner of revenues, said today that the personnel of the new 11th income tax collections department would be ready to announce "in a day or two."

Organization of the department has been going forward since the constitutionality and legality of the act was passed on by the supreme court.

Space has been provided for this division in department headquarters and desks and other necessary office equipment has been moved in.

World War Vets
Are Not Exempt

Must Pay Poll Tax To Get
License of Any Kind
From State.

LITTLE ROCK, July 12.—(AP)—Veterans of the World War are not exempt from the payment of poll tax and unless the tax is paid are prohibited from receiving license from the state government under the poll tax, was the gist of an opinion rendered by Attorney General Norwood today.

The opinion was sought by Dr. C. W. Garrison, state health officer. Several ex-service men are conducting hotels and restaurants in the state. They have no license to operate them but contend that a law enacted in 1921 conferring certain benefits for World War veterans included exemption from the payment of a poll tax.

Unless such a tax is paid, the opinion stated, one could not secure a license to operate any business.

Attorney Cites Fact That Peace Officer Reduced
Degree of Crime.

BATESVILLE, July 12.—Attorneys for Mrs. Norma Osborne, 21-year-old widow, will seek her release through habeas corpus proceedings which have been filed here returnable Saturday morning before Judge S. M. Bone in Circuit Court.

Mrs. Osborne faces murder charges in connection with the killing of her husband, Maurice Osborne, 23-year-old Gord store clerk, who was found murdered on the night of July 1 shortly after he had returned home from working late at his father's store.

Attorney Dene Coleman, representing Mrs. Osborne, says that the petition seeking privilege of bail is based on the fact that Justice Joseph Foster reduced the charge from first to second degree murder after hearing the evidence. He contends that it is not believed that the state holds enough evidence against the prisoner to deny her bond.

Officers still have been unable to locate J. P. Barber, Batesville basket ball star, who disappeared on the night of the killing of his chum, and who is sought on first degree murder charges.

Aimee Enters Field
of 'Talkie' Movies

Four Square Gospel Sermons To Be Depicted In Films.

HOLLYWOOD, July 11.—Aimee Semple McPherson, the world's best known woman evangelist, has decided to get into the motion picture talkie swim.

The famous proprietor of Angelus temple has no intention, however, of entering into competition with the wizards of the film colony.

She expects, rather, to make a series of talkie films which will carry her sermons and the pageantry surrounding them to the various branches of her Four Square Gospel.

Through the use of talking films she believes she can extend her influence and increase the attendance in the 800 churches which acknowledge her as leader.

She plans to have screens placed in all the branches and to have her own texts become a weekly feature in all the organizations affiliated with the mother church, Angelus Temple.

On the face of it her talkie experiment should accomplish its every object.

Those who have observed her generally have agreed that Mrs. McPherson's personal magnetism is largely responsible for the growth of her entire religious system.

Presuming that to be true, Mrs. McPherson in talkies should be able to jam her branch churches even as she regularly fills her 5,000 capacity Angelus Temple.

The idea of having Mrs. McPherson in pictures is not a new one at all.

Since the time she returned from the desert with her story of the miracle of her escape from Rosie and Steve, the kidnappers, she has been sought after by Hollywood producers.

All of them have wanted to get Mrs. McPherson's personality and her box office appeal into pictures.

In each instance, however, the producers wished to present her as the evangelist in a regular motion picture story while Mrs. McPherson asked that her Four Square Gospel be made the subject of the film.

Just as the idea of appearing in a wordly picture never could draw Mrs. McPherson to the klieg lights, the idea of trying to make a long Broadway run of one of her sermons never appealed to the producers.

The screen colony's technicians, cameramen and the like will be utilized by Mrs. McPherson in her talkies. No doubt she, herself, will do the directing.

Valiant Fight.

Dr. J. S. Waddle, aged 80, for three-quarters of a century a resident of this section of the state, died at his home yesterday afternoon after an illness of five months, heart trouble and the infirmities of old age being cause of death.

Funeral services were held this afternoon at Harmony Methodist church at Sutton, conducted by Dr. F. A. Buddin, of this city, with burial in Harmony cemetery.

Deceased leaves surviving two sons, Claude and George, three daughters, Mrs. G. A. Linaker, Mrs. C. S. Briant and Mrs. Leo Purdue, all of Hope; a brother, J. M., and a sister, Mrs. Sanders, both of Sutton.

Dr. Waddle was, perhaps, one of the best known men in southwest Arkansas. For many years he was an active practitioner, giving up his work only when forced to take to his bed. He was honored and respected by all who knew him and many there will be who will feel a keen sense of personal loss in his passing.

County 4-H Clubs To Attend Farmers Week

The following 4-H clubs in Hempstead county have already raised money to send from 2 to 16 members each to Farmers Week this year at Fayetteville, August 6, 7, 8, 9.

Sweet Home, Bingen, De Ann, Fulton, Saratoga, Rocky Mount, Green Laseter Hinton and Washington.

Several other 4-H clubs in the county are planning to have some kind of a program to raise money to send delegates. The methods used by the clubs to raise the necessary funds to send delegates is to have Ice Cream Suppers, picnics, cold drink stands at public places, plays, etc.

The indications are at present that Hempstead county will have the largest delegation at Farmer's week this year than they have ever had. One of the features which promises to increase the number this year is the fact that we are getting an especially low railroad fare for the round trip. The round trip will cost only $5.00. This is even less than 10¢ per mile. The fact that we are having such a fine program at Farmers Week and that our State University is located there is enough to justify anyone making the trip. If no one has never been to Fayetteville it will certainly pay them to make this trip.

Meals for the 4-H club members for the entire time they are there will cost only $2.50 which makes a total cost of $7.50 per club member for the entire trip. Let's all go.

Pulaski Deputy

Car and Falls Or Is Pushed Off.

LITTLE ROCK, July 12.—(AP)—A. R. Lamb, Pulaski county deputy sheriff, was injured today when he fell or was pushed from the running board of a car occupied by two men suspected of being liquor runners.

One of the men in the car, Walter Hill, was arrested and held in the city jail without charge. He was driving the car. The deputy was not seriously hurt.

An attempt was made by Lamb to halt the car on the Little Rock-Hot Springs highway, but as he leaped for the running board the car speeded up and he fell.

Officers found a ten gallon keg of whiskey which they said was thrown from Hill's car.

Noon.

Two Hope Boy Scouts—Edward Bader and Rufus Herndon, Jr.—put on the program at the Rotary club luncheon today noon in the Barlow hotel.

Their graphic stories of life in a Boy Scout camp this summer were presented under direction of John Martin, scoutmaster of Hope. Mr. Martin followed the two boys with a discussion of the value of scouting to a community, urging support of the work in Hope.

Among other plans for local scouting Mr. Martin announced that four Hope boys would be selected by competitive tests to act as aides to the four visiting governors who will speak here at the fourth annual Watermelon Festival August 8.

Two visitors who spoke today noon were: Jim Waldrep, Rotarian of Tulsa, Okla., and George S. Alder, of Waldo, Ark.

County Youth To Attend K. C. Camp

May Take Choice of Three Camps Instead of Forced To One.

Information has just been received by E. F. McFaddin, County Chairman of the Citizens Military Training Camp work in this county, that the C. M. T. C. camp this summer at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, during the month of August, is open to young men of Hempstead county, Arkansas, and the Government will pay all expenses at camp, and will reimburse those attending camp at the rate of five cents per mile, for the full distance between home and camp and return.

Heretofore, the government has required that men from Hempstead county, Arkansas, attend the Jefferson Barracks camp at St. Louis, Missouri, during the month of July, since the mileage to Leavenworth was an additional expense that the Government would not pay. This year the government is giving young men from Hempstead county the option of going to Jefferson Barracks at St. Louis, or Fort Leavenworth at Kansas City, and will pay the mileage, round trip, to either camp.

Any young man in this county, interested in going to Fort Leavenworth during the month of August, may obtain the necessary application blanks from E. F. McFaddin, Hope, Arkansas.

CULVER CITY, Cal., July 12.—(AP)—Completing 240 hours in the air at 7:29 a. m. the endurance fliers Mendell and Reinhart in their biplane, the Angelino, began their eleventh day in the skies, the ship functioned smoothly and the men tired but apparently in good physical condition.

The ship, alternately piloted by the men, swings in large circles over the field, only occasionally getting out of gliding distance of the airport. The pilots are clinging stubbornly to their resolution to outlast the motor in their second-hand plane which for ten days had held them over and which now roars on toward the 300-hour mark.

The plane re-fueled this morning, taking on 100 gallons of gasoline, regarded as proof that they were not willing, yet to come down. The contact was made smoothly and without mishap and the refueling pilot said that the record ship's motor was functioning perfectly.

Rio Grande Farmer
Plants Year 'Round Crop

BROWNSVILLE, Tex., July 12.—(AP)—It is one planting and harvesting after another for farmers in the Rio Grande valley. No season is exempt.

Fall cabbage is planted any time from July 1 to December 1. It is marketed about 130 or 150 days after planting.

Planting dates on cauliflower range from July 15 to November 15. The marketing season runs from October to March. Egg plant is an all-year crop.

July, January or the spring is pepper-planting time. Tomatoes are planted all through the summer for all shipments.

Organization In Business

A WEST Virginia congressman interviewing the President yesterday with regard to a minimum wage scale in the coal fields of his state reported that Mr. Hoover thought this "one of the vital approaches to solution of the problems confronting the coal industry."

The congressman—Mr. Bowman—told the President that it was up to the West Virginia operators to work out such an agreement because under existing conditions operators in bidding for contracts with the railroads frequently make their bids so low that they are forced to reduce the wages of the miners to fulfill the terms of the agreement.

Any system of doing business which deliberately sacrifices the wages and morale of an organization in order to live up to a sales contract is bad. And as long as capital is unable to agree within itself just so long will there be labor troubles, and just so long will state and nation be penalized by industrial shutdowns and economic hardships.

The mining industry offers a problem in business organization that is more difficult than most, principally because of the vast sums of money invested in properties which will never earn the returns expected of them. Operation of said properties disturbs the entire industry, but until the industry absorbs them there will be in the coal business the same chaotic condition that is seen in the unregulated production of oil. After all it is merely a problem in regulation, and the White House seems to agree that private regulation is better than government interference.

No more striking example of the ability of private capital to overcome tremendous obstacles and place an entire industry on a paying basis, may be found anywhere than in the printing and publishing business. Where there is one unprofitable mine today there were ten unprofitable newspapers before the World war. The newspaper business was notorious for having a greater duplication of units than any other industry—and this condition existed from the most metropolitan cities down to the smallest.

The average return on all newspaper investments before the World war left the printing business in a perilous state. None but a few of the biggest dailies, or smaller journals fortunately located in a monopoly field, were able to show good returns.

Yet in the wake of the World war there was a perfect flood of newspaper purchases and consolidations which was in reality nothing but the attempt of private capital to protect itself by private regulation.

To every business and industry there come problems which demand similar attention. The very principles of trade and commerce require that the true cost of a commodity be covered by its purchase price—and so long as the selling end of the business is able to make progress only at the expense of the production department, with its employees and homes and citizens, then there is a fundamental need for organization in business.

The country will watch with an abiding interest what luck the West Virginia operators have in settling their problems.

Future Meat Supply

WITHIN 50 years the principal source of the world's meat supply will not be cattle, but reindeer from Alaska, Canada and Siberia, in the opinion of Vilhjalmur Stefansson, famed Arctic explorer.

He gives several reasons for his prediction, an important one being the economy in raising reindeer, while live on grass in summer and on lichens and bushes in winter. Besides reindeer meat may be kept in natural cold storage in the far North until it is desired to ship it out.

Another reason for the predicted decline of cattle as a food source is the increase of tuberculosis, which is making serious inroads on the Argentine herds, and threatens American herds also.

The possibility of having to eat reindeer meat is nothing to be alarmed about, Stefansson says, as its taste is little different from that of beef. But most folks will doubtless prefer to stick to beefsteak as long as it is available.

WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

WASHINGTON—It seems rather tragic because one can think of so many nicer things to do with the money, but the Treasury will be destroying three or four billion dollars in currency within the next year or so.

All the money we are now carrying in our pockets is headed for the devouring currency macerators in the Treasury building and the Bureau of Engraving and Printing here. It was bound there anyway, but the issuance of the new small currency will speed up the process somewhat, although all the old bills aren't coming back in a flood because most of the new money will be issued only as the old bills wear out.

It's Fun To Watch
The average life of a dollar bill is only seven months and lives of other bills longer in proportion to their denominations, so Treasury officials expect to have our pockets filled principally with the new currency well within a year. Issuance of it begins July 10.

With an easily procured pass one can watch the destruction of a few million dollars either at the Treasury or the Bureau. Several million dollars are destroyed daily, under the most careful supervision. Your correspondent attended one such session in the basement of the Treasury building, where a single macerator eats up from one to three million dollars at a time. This macerator takes care of the worn national bank notes; those at the Bureau destroy the U. S. currency and federal reserve notes.

The macerator is a large churn, resembling a big red apple about 12 feet in diameter, operated by a steam engine which has been doing business in the Treasury since 1873, reducing millions of dollars to pulp every day. The principle is somewhat similar to that of a cooker in a paper mill.

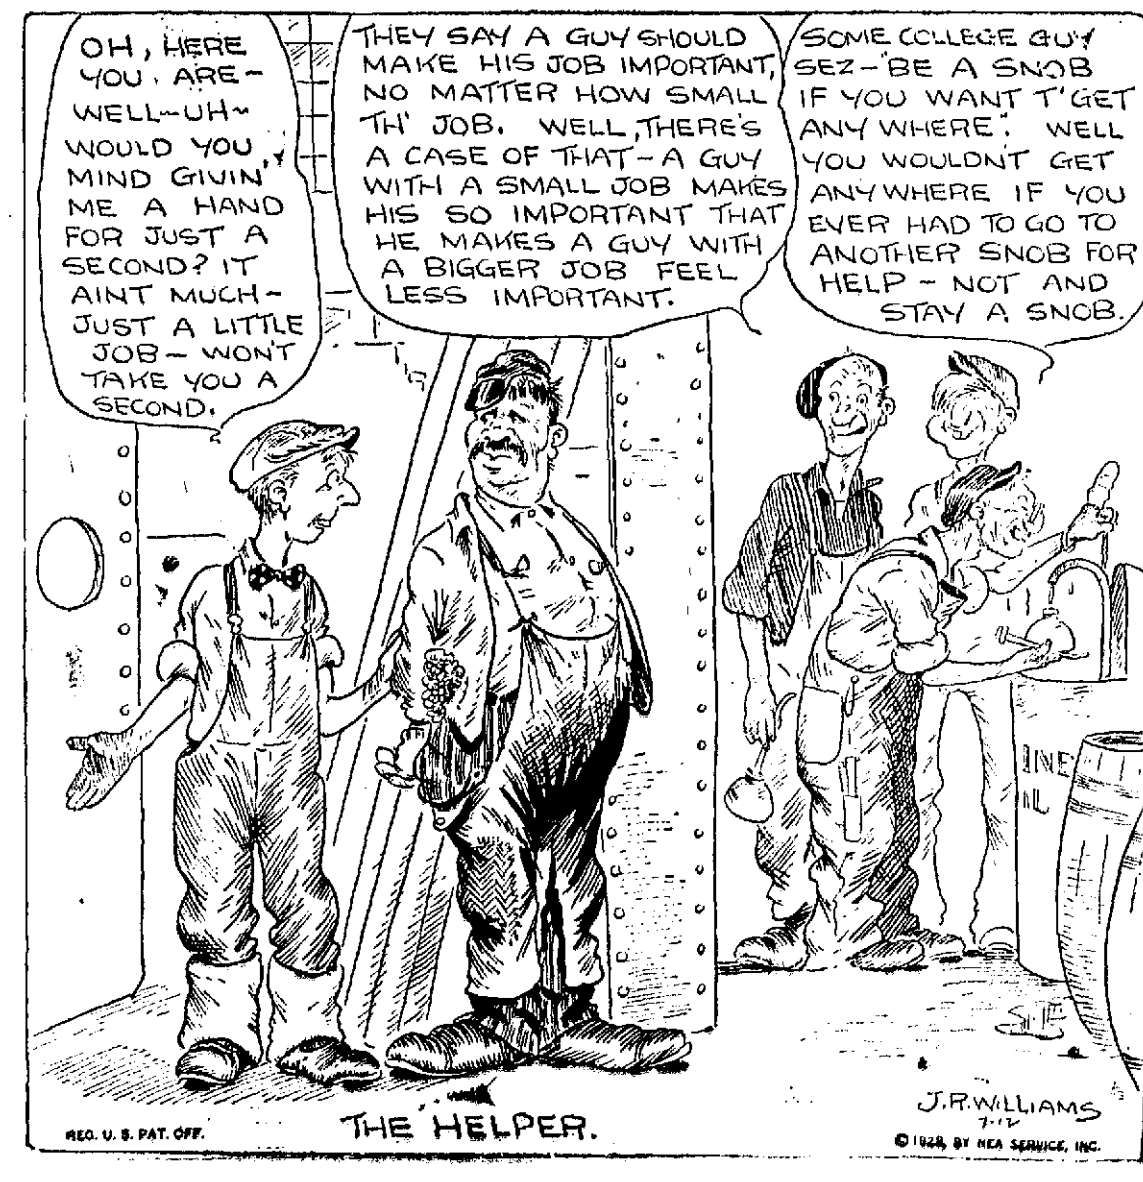

When the money is dumped in the churn is about half full of a mixture of water, soda ash and lime. While the chemicals destroy the silk fiber and attack the coloring matter, 110 knives, some stationary and some revolving, cut the paper to tiny bits. No whole money is thrown in. The banks returning the currency slice it neatly in two.

Special "destruction committees" are appointed from among officials at both the Treasury and the Bureau. It's their job to see that there isn't any monkey business. At the Treasury Secretary Mellon has appointed John F. Moran as chairman of the national bank note destruction committee.

Mr. Moran and two other members are accompanied to the macerator by a bank agent. The doomed money is brought from the Treasurer's office in trunks, each of which has three trays. Tray by tray, it is carefully dumped from a raised platform into a square hole, about 14 inches, in the top of the macerator.

Each member of the committee has two keys. These are for three separate locks to clamp down the hatch of the macerator after the money goes in and three separate locks which must be unlocked before the machine can begin operation. After unlocking the latter and locking the former each member puts his key in his pocket. They return together an hour or two later, unlock the hatch and gaze upon the pulp to see if it is sufficiently mashed. It generally is.

USED CARS

USED CARS of Many Makes are traded in for the New Ford

SOME people think we accept nothing but used Fords for trade-ins when selling the Model A. That is a wrong impression. Cars of many makes are traded in for the new Ford—some low priced and some not so low—and many of them are unusual bargains in unused transportation.

There is a definite reason why we can offer you extra value in these used cars. The value of the new Ford is so high, and the cost so low, that excessive trade-in concessions on buyers' used cars are not possible. In other words, we set the trade-in figure at just what the used car is worth.

This means that when we offer a used car for sale, there is no "padding" the price to take care of an unreasonable trade-in allowance. Our used-car department is based on a spirit of fair-dealing—fair-dealing with the first owner who makes the trade-in, and the second owner who buys the unused mileage.

Model T Fords are reconditioned, and carry a guarantee. Other makes are priced strictly according to the unused transportation in them. Come in today and see some of the bargains we are in a position to offer.

I see many summer evening wraps of heavy

NOTICE
At 10 a. m. July 12, 1929, there will be a meeting at the City Hall in Hope, Ark., of the members of the Hope and Hempstead County Hospital Association for the purpose of electing a president of the association, to succeed Mr. Irving
L. Jones, who moved to Lubbock, Tex., recently.
At this meeting reports will be received from certain committees including the committee appointed to purchase a hospital site. All members are urged to attend.
L. C. Johnson, Vice-President.

Stanley Courtney vs. Stanley Courtney was the strange title of a court case recently tried in Kentucky county, Kentucky. Even stranger was the fact that it was a divorce suit, both husband and wife being named Stanley. The male Stanley was granted a decree after establishing that the female Stanley had left him a month after their marriage.

DEAR FRIENDS:—
The ladies of Hope are learning that it pays to send their dresses—the dainty silk ones—to Hall-Moses.
This hot weather soon soils dainty feminine apparel. (That's a pretty good line for an amateur, don't you think?)
Anyway, this establishment is getting more and more of this kind of work and that must mean that the ladies are getting acquainted with the quality of the work done.
Honestly, these silk dresses look like new when they are cleaned, pressed and ready for delivery.

Where Ignorance Is bliss

New Virginia Election Fiery As 1928 Split

By Frank H. Fuller
(Associated Press Correspondent)
RICHMOND, Va., July 11.—(AP)— The tempestuous presidential campaign of 1928 in Virginia, with its sundering of traditionally solid democratic party lines, appears but a preliminary skirmish to the political battles now raging for control of the state government.
The republicans crossed the Potomac last year but the democrats are determined they shall not enter Richmond.
Definite cooperation of republicans and anti-Smith democrats was made certain through nomination by both organizations of Dr.
Williams Moseley Brown, young college professor, as their candidate for governor, although the two organizations expect to conduct campaigns independent of each other.
Accepting the challenge, the democrats are striving to heal the breach made in its erstwhile solid front in the offensive against Alfred E. Smith in 1928.
The coalition of republicans and anti-Smith adherents has its first noticeable effect in the quietest democratic primary in years, the three candidates for the democratic gubernatorial nomination apparently using great caution on questions likely to cause any dissension within party ranks. All are pleading for continued democratic control and pledging loyalty regardless of primary results.
The coalition ticket offers opposition all along the line, C.
C. Berkeley, a Newport News lawyer and anti-Smith democrat, seeking the office of attorney general, and R. Walter Dickenson, a Russell county "dirt farmer" and republican, running for lieutenant governor.
The campaign already has begun although the thunder of political oratory will not begin in barrage form until after the democratic primary has settled the lineup of the opposition.
And as the battle rages, the other southern states who left the "Solid South" for the republican

DR. WILLIAM M. BROWN

fold last year, watch from afar the Virginia battlefields even as they did in 1860. Virginia is the first of the southern "Hoover states" to hold a state election.
Only one issue appears within the democratic ranks of enough importance to merit special attention.
This is the "short ballot" amendment adopted by the people last year authorizing the governor to appoint the state treasurer, commissioner of agriculture and the state superintendent of education.
Two of the democratic aspirants
—G. Walter Mapp and Rosewell Page—seek its repeal, while the "short ballot" likewise has been condemned by the platforms of the republican party and the anti-Smith democrats. John Garland Pollard, the third aspirant for the democratic nomination holds the "short ballot" not an issue, since the legislature may take the appointive power from the governor after 1932 and make the offices elective.
Dr. Brown, who is only 35 and looks more like an All American football player than a scholarly professor of psychology, says he has answered a "clarion call to duty" in resigning his professorship at Washington and Lee university to run as an "independent" candidate for governor.
Although a democrat until the 1928 presidential campaign, Dr.
Brown classes himself an "independent" in politics and says Virginia has had too much of partisan government.
Bishop James Cannon Jr., of the Methodist Episcopal church, South who led the anti-Smith democrats in their break with the democratic party last year, is watching the campaign from Washington. He has not maintained a hands-off policy, however, advising the group in advance to stay out of the primary and name an independent ticket for state offices.
To the anti-Smith convention he sent a lengthy message urging wra-on "Raskobism" and state democratic leaders who supported Alfred E. Smith for president.
The democratic primary will be August 6. Leaders of opposing forces predict that the general election will eclipse the record vote cast in 1928. Since the anti-Smith and republican forces, combined with an unknown number of Democrats who voted for Hoover but declined to join the anti-Smith organization, polled 164,000 votes in the general election last year to 140,000 for the democratic party, the democrats must draw approximately 2,000 votes to their standard this year to retain control of the state government.
Democratic leaders do not expect to win "by the usual 50,000 majority," but they express confidence of ultimate victory through return of anti-Smith democrats.

Fears No Man
 Dick Sharkey, who is supposed to meet Der Max Schmeling in the Tunny-Muldon trophy fight, is not too sure of his own ability to win. He is not too sure of his own ability to win. He is not too sure of his own ability to win.

When Sharkey returned to Boston where he is a squire, he was asked what he thought of the German fighter.
 "Max is a Cinch," he said without hesitating a minute. "That Paulino is all washed up. Good sparring partner now. But did you notice that when Schmeling got into the belly he wanted to jump out of the ring."
 This, if Schmeling can't stand him in the stomach, would make it appear that a match between Sharkey and Schmeling would be for the world's jumping-out-of-the-ring championship.

Don't Want Out Then
 Because Sharkey was surely pumped for the door when Dempsey bumped that one into his waist.
 But, of course, Schmeling is not the puncher that the Dempsey was. And no one of the fighters likes him in the body.

Don't Be Too Sure
 These are the fateful days when, according to the baseball fables, the pennant winners in the major leagues can be picked for your good dough.

It is a legend that the leader, with a long lead, on July Fourth is the pennant winner and with their sweet lead the Athletics look like the American League pennant winner. But it has to be a matter of choice in the National League. A few games is no big lead.

The Athletics are out in front by about the same distance the Yankees were last year when the magnates were mourning that the Yanks should be broken up to restore competition and save business.

Yanks Kicked Theirs Away
 But, it may be recalled that the big lead of the Yankees filtered away last year and they were tossed into a fight for their lives when the Athletics overtook them.
 The Yanks, with the Babe on one foot and Herb Pennock out of

DID YOU KNOW THAT—

They tossed eggs at Johnny Risko in Detroit—After he had fouled Tuffy Griffiths—And Risko says he's going to start training—And do a comeback for that Sharkey guy—When Sharkey beats Schmeling—The Cincinnati Reds say that the ball being used in the National League is not too lively—And they would like it with more life—So they could get some long hits—Carl Lind, second baseman for the Cleveland Indians, was the find of 1928—And rated as one of the best in baseball—But he was benched recently—And Dick Porter, an outfielder, was put in his place.

The game survived the fight on their guts and the heroic pitching of Waite Hoyt.

Athletics Bound To Slump
 It remains to be seen if the Athletics will have the same fortitude if they are put to the test. And they are bound to be tested because every baseball man knows they are playing over their heads and it is a matter of record that every team has to have a slump.
 They are saying around the west end half of the circuit that the Yanks aren't to be figured but that Detroit is the ball club to watch.

Matlock Gets Decision Over Lavell In Ten-Frame Session

Bout Was One of Best Ever Seen Here, With Men Evenly Matched and Neither Being Able To Put the Other Away for the Count.

Launching a furious body attack against his opponent at the clanging of the gong and keeping it up throughout ten rounds of rapid-fire action brought Jack Matlock a decision over Tex Lavell in their meeting at the Rink last night.

Matlock had the edge on his opponent by a little weight and much experience, while the younger man had superior speed and boxing skill. There is no question as to the gameness of the two men—though there was a lot of question as to the fairness of the referee's decision over the bout.

Lavell worked for Matlock's head and jaw, getting home a few solid wallops but none in a spot to do the proper amount of damage. Matlock, after a few futile efforts to connect with Lavell's chin, changed his plan and launched a body drive working for the heart and wind, and but for the superb physical condition of the younger man would have won by another knock-out.

In the third and ninth rounds Lavell opened with a flash of speed and fighting fury, taking both by a wide margin. The work of Matlock standing him in good stead in tying his opponent up and robbing his blows of their efficiency.

One of the judges declared the bout a draw; the other gave it to Matlock by a two-round margin, and the referee awarded Matlock the decision. It was learned there was considerable money changed hands as a result of the decision, many local fans having backed Lavell to win.

In the preliminaries, Stroud, local boxer, stepped a fast five rounds with young Clarke, of Stephens, the two putting on a good show. Young Whatley lost a decision to Gordon Lamb after a card marred by continual clinching—in which both were guilty. "Preacher" Walker was slated to mix it with "Kid Shimmy" from Little Rock, but the "Kid" shimmied some other place. He didn't show up here. The "Preacher" went on with a negro from Prescott some twelve pounds heavier than he and the boys put on a scrap worth seeing.

Next Thursday night's card has not been announced but it is almost certain that Steele, who took the decision over Solmar here a week ago, will be a main event contender.

TAKE YOUR OWN SONNY BOY TO SEE "SONNY BOY"

"Sonny Boy" Lee, aged four, is probably the funniest, most lovable little boy in the world, with the exception, of course, of your own little Sonny Boy—and the tiny star comes to the Saenger theatre in his first stellar effort, "Sonny Boy" that we are having such a fine production now showing.

The story of the play is by Leon Zuerdo, the scenario by C. Graham Baker and the direction by Archie L. Mayo. The cast includes Edward Everett Horton, Betty Bronson, Gertrude Olmstead, John T. Murray, Edmund Breese, Lucy Beaumont and Jed Prouty.

Take all the family to see Davey Lee and to enjoy his funny little unstudied but delightful antics. You will find it a new and delightful experience.

A real case of the office seeking the man is reported from Lewes, Del., where Dr. James M. Thompson is serving his 28th term as mayor. For 15 years he has vigorously protested against continuing in office, but he is unanimously elected each year anyway.

Aimee Knocks Out the Devil

With a terrific uppercut to the jaw, Aimee Semple McPherson, the evangelist, knocked the devil flat when she entered the ring before 12,000 fight fans at the Risko-Griffith heavyweight bout in Detroit the other night. But it was only a cardboard devil, painted red, that Aimee had made for the occasion. The evangelist tried to preach a sermon from the ring, but the fight crowd was in no mood to listen.

BRUSHING UP SPORTS . . . By Laufer

SOMEWHERE in his baseball career, Walter Johnson, manager of the Washington Senators, must have walked under a ladder.
 Or, maybe he carelessly tossed his hat on a hotel bed. Or perhaps he exchanged stares with a cross-eyed colored boy in the full of the moon.
 Anyway if baseball's code of voodooism can be taken seriously, Old Joshua P. Jinx seems to have picked out Walter for the buggy ride.
 Consider his fate since he has taken charge of the Nats. On paper this spring his team was picked to run one, two, three by the majority of dopesters. The Senators appeared a most classy ball club in pre-season games and stories of what the Washington pitchers were displaying in the Southland filled columns of sports page space. But soon after the season opened, Mr. Jinx started to do his stuff.
 Illness and injuries hit the team like a Kansas twister blew an up and coming wheat field. Even old Barney had to leave the bench for a hospital bunk. Al Liska, the sensational newcomer, of whom much had been written and of whom so much was expected, flivvered after a nice start. Bump Hadley, who pitched as nice a brand of ball as most pitchers who were running up win columns, couldn't beat anybody.

 Goose Goslin, last year's batting champion, acted like an Appalachian League recruit at the plate. Garland Braxton, who the year before led the American League pitchers in effectiveness, was off his stride due to illness and injuries. Firpo Marberry, whom ball players like as one of the best pitchers in the game, seemed destined to go back to his role of bull pen pitcher.
 In short, the first division pick of the experts looked like the team the Red Sox would have to beat out for the cool hole championship. And to date, there has been no striking reversal of form.

ARKANSAS- PHILOSOPHY

DON'T SEND ME AWAY FROM HOME!!

151 People Used this Booster Dollar In a Single Month!

A Southern city recently tried a most interesting experiment—a practical demonstration of keeping home money at home. A note was attached to a dollar bill, saying: "Don't Send or Carry Me Away from This Town. I Am a Home Town Booster Dollar, demonstrating how many local people I benefit." At the end of 30 days, the dollar's history showed that the single bill had gone:

- 34 times to grocers and butchers.
- 26 times to druggists.
- 9 times to hardware stores.
- 10 times to garage or auto supply shops.
- 7 times to shoe stores.
- 8 times to theaters.
- 4 times to florists.
- 6 times to milliners.
- 17 times to banks for deposit.
- 8 times for clerks' wages.
- 6 times for clothing.
- 2 times for church or charity.
- 1 time for shoe repairing.
- 1 time for insurance.
- 4 times for doctors' services.
- 1 time for a painted sign.
- 2 times for tailors' services.
- 3 times for farm products.
- 2 times to plumbers.

In less dramatic fashion, the same lesson is being taught in every Arkansas town and city today.

PERSONAL MENTION

Perry Parker, Hope boy seeing a bit of service in Uncle Sam's navy but who has been home for several days visiting relatives and friends, has returned to his station at San Diego, Cal., where he has re-shipped for another four-year hitch. Perry is a water-tender, second class, and in line for promotion again. He was a dinner guest of Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Hollis Thursday evening where a number of friends gathered to wish him frequent furloughs to the old home port.

pose she would.

"Then," proposed Rita, "I think you should borrow the wherewithal from some of your whiggish rich classmates and throw a party for us poor church mice."

It was a grand party. It began with caviar, and ended with French ice cream served in tangerine shells. There were favors for everyone, from the French Shop in the village. And orchids for the table.

"What will you do with your wealth," teased Beatrice Blake, "marry your only love?"

"Honestly," she said, "I don't know. I'd love to be married right straight off. But Jack's awful proud, and he has the funniest notions."

"If you love each other," declared Beatrice, "I don't see what difference it makes whose money it is. If Jack should inherit $10,000, you wouldn't have any scruples about marrying him, would you?"

"Of course no. But that's different," asserted Molly.

Vivian Mandle thought it would be insane not to be married at once.

"But a man's home is his castle the poets say," interposed Marjorie Parker. "I know Jack. He'd be sore as anything if Molly wanted to furnish their shack. And I wouldn't blame him a bit. What man wants to live off his wife's bounty?"

"Why don't you go abroad for a year?" suggested someone. "Adm

"Well, I know what I'd do," began Marjorie again. "I'd take that $10,000, and I'd . . ."

"Maybe Molly has some ideas of her own," interrupted Rita. Molly passed her hand razedly across her forehead.

"Let's not talk about it," she said. "It's awful, girls. . . I keep seeing poor Aunt Minnie, sitting on a little stool in the back of her shop, pinning violets on an old lady's bonnet. And . . . you know it seems awfully hardboiled, somehow, talking about spending her money. The money she earned sewing violets on old ladies' bonnets. Poor Aunt Min—she just about lost her eyesight, taking stitches to earn her tiny fortune."

Rita rose to her feet. "Let's clear out, girls," she commanded brusquely. "It's late. Give poor Aunt Min a rest."

She kissed Molly affectionately.

"Come in my room when you get rid of them, will you?" she asked. "Spend the night with me, I mean. I've something to tell you."

Rita went in for exotic things. She was sprawled now across the crimson cover that cloaked her couch. Her pajamas were black, and she wore little scarlet mules on her bare feet. In one hand she held a cigaret holder 18 inches long, and red as blood. Rita smoked amber cigarets when she could get them. And burned a heavy Oriental incense.

She hadn't any money, but she knew how to make a little go a long way.

One was a tall, thin girl, with extraordinary eyes and a full red mouth. She carried herself arrogantly and with a good deal of grace. People said she looked like Lenore Ulric, and probably she did, with her passionate red lips and her great smoldering eyes. She was an intense creature and not given to any of the usual collegiate frivolities.

Some months before she had confided in Molly her secret marriage to Bob Newton. Molly had never cared particularly for Bob. He was a rather intellectual young man, with faded blue eyes

Here's what happened when the coastal liner Prince George, bound from Nova Scotia to Boston with 287 passengers, collided with the Coast Guard patrol boat Agassiz in a black fog about 50 miles from Gloucester, Mass. The NEA-Hope Star photo at the top shows the gaping hole torn in the bow of the steamer by the tiny speedster, and in the inset you see the lifeboats of the Prince George which were lowered to transfer passengers to the less damaged Agassiz. It then, however, was dangerously overloaded. The Coast Guard cutter Mohave, racing to its aid, reached the Agassiz and took on the passengers to land them at Boston. The cutter, which figured in a sensational rescue last winter, is pictured below with its after deck crowded with passengers and crew of the Prince George. None as injured and both ships safely reached port.

The "Flat Tire" Dive—It's Easy!

For thrills from plain and fancy diving, add this feat to your list of tricks. It's simple. All you have to do is to coil yourself inside of an old tire, get someone to roll you off the spring board—and down you go! Arthur Kurtz, former western A. A. U. diving champion, is showing spectators how at a Philadelphia swimming pool.

Queen of "Feast of Pirates"

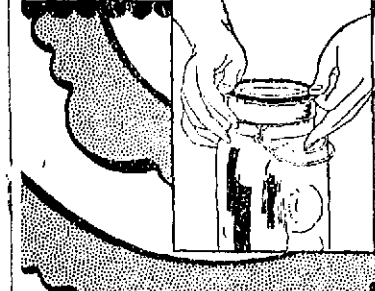

Pretty Elizabeth Hoggard, above, of Wilmington, N. C., will reign as queen of Wilmington's annual "Feast of Pirates" celebration, August 21 to 23. This celebration is patterned after the Mardi Gras celebration at New Orleans, and attracts thousands of visitors to Wilmington every year.

(EDITORS—This is for release Sunday, July 14, or thereafter.)

Perhaps it isn't assuming very much to style Baron General Gichi Tanaka, above, premier of Japan, the "Mussolini of the Orient." In addition to being premier Baron Tanaka holds the posts of Minister of Foreign Affairs, Minister of Commerce, and Minister of the Overseas Department. He also has hopes of acquiring the finance portfolio.

Charles Little, recently arrested in North Carolina after a nationwide search, is a different kind of "fall guy." He is said to have defrauded insurance companies, hotels and department stores out of nearly $50,000 by faking injuries from falls, and collecting various sums when managers or owners sought speedy compromise settlements.

Local Hospital Seeks President

Nominating Committee Chosen Friday At City Hall.

A nominating committee to select possible successors to Irving Jones, resigned president of the Hope and Hempstead County Hospital association, was chosen at a call meeting of the association this morning.

The meeting was convened in the city hall at 10 o'clock, with Carter Johnson, vice-president. Reports of various committees were heard by the 18 members who were present, and the session adjourned with the understanding that another call meeting would be held within a week or ten days to hear the report of the nominating group.

Miss Margaret Shotwell of Omaha, who has won world-wide fame as a pianist although only 19, has been chosen as soloist with the Philharmonic symphony orchestra at the great Salzburg music festival in Austria, which opens July 25th.
